

On Silence by Barbara Hurd

Silence arrest flight,
so that in its refuge
The need to flee the chaos of noise diminishes
We let the world creep closer,
we drop to our knees
As if to let the heart,
like a small animal,
Gets its legs on the ground.

~*~

Posted by Marie Bloomfield, B.Sc.,M.Psychol.MA
Website: www.bloomfieldpsychology.com.au
Website: www.mindfulpath.com.au